

SOCIAL WORK DESERVES RESPECT!

Advising, educating, supervising, nurturing, encouraging, supporting – and much more! Our roles in social and educational services may be varied but they always have one thing in common: the needs of the individual. After all, we want our society to remain a community. However, we'd also like our work to get the respect it deserves.

That's why we'll be holding pay talks once again with local government employers on 25 February 2022. The aim is to obtain a fair wage and better overall working conditions. These negotiations were due to take place in 2020 but were postponed due to the coronavirus pandemic. However, our issues – particularly the urgent need to recruit new and skilled workers – can no longer be put off.

We're asking for your solidarity and support while expressing our justified claims to employers and for your understanding if we are unable to be there for you in our usual capacity as a result of this conflict. Together we can ensure that old and young alike receive the best possible care in future!
